A surprise from a fishbowl

There's nothing quite like attending an event where you can unwind with friends and enjoy delicious food and beverages.

But when your name is called to win a door prize? That's the cherry on top!

Chamber After Hours has built a great reputation for its door prizes. Rightfully so. From gift cards to chocolates and tote bags filled with treats, each door prize winner leaves with a smile on their face. One door prize that tends to steal the visual center stage is the beautiful floral arrangements from Peterman's Flower Shop in Juniata.

Honoring a tradition that started years ago by her mother, Sandy Schwabenbauer, Andrea Hammel, owner of Peterman's, continues to provide a floral arrangement for After Hours.

"I have been told that the response from winning an arrangement for the After Hours event is always positive! It's the perfect way for us to show off what we can do and also remind people how wonderful it is to receive flowers! I will always continue this "tradition" of sorts!," she said.

Sandi Kaminsky agrees.

If you've been to an After Hours event, you have likely seen Sandi enjoying an evening of good conversation with friends. Another thing you often see is Sandi leaving with a great door prize.

"I'm always shocked when my name is called. I never expect to win anything, but it's certainly a nice surprise when I do," she said.

Over the years, Sandi has been the lucky recipient of the coveted floral arrangement. In fact, after sharing her excitement with her son, who lives in Alexandria, Virginia, he knew exactly where to turn to when he wanted to order an arrangement for his mother—Peterman's.

The power of donating a door prize.

"This is a no brainer! After Hours events are filled with Blair County business owners, managers, etc. By donating a beautiful arrangement, we are reaching the people who work, live and spend money in our area. The flowers reach people who understand the importance of supporting other businesses within our area. This donation has a ripple effect by creating future orders," Hammel said.

No matter the size of your door prize donation—big, small, or somewhere in between—each one brings excitement to the event. Every contribution adds to the fun and creates memorable moments for those lucky winners.

To donate a door prize, or for more information, contact Jessie Covert at jcovert@blairchamber.com. She'll go over the details with you.

Be sure to join the fun at an After Hours event. With great door prizes up for grabs, you never know...when we reach for the fishbowl, the next name we pull just might be yours!
